7.30 pm

at Bridgwater Museum

5, Blake Street, Bridgwater, TA6 3NB

Brian Wright qualified as an archaeologist; he has a particular interest in pottery and has excavated in the City of London and elsewhere. With his experience of archaeology, science and historical research, Brian presents subjects in a unique way. He has given talks for radio and written a television series (Weird West). He has also authored many articles and several books - those of local interest include: "Somerset Dragons", "Brigid: Goddess, Druidess and Saint" and a biography of Andrew Crosse, the 19th century Somerset scientist.

Brian's return to tell us about his research into the enigmatic green man carvings found so often in Somerset promises to be an eye-opener. Not to be missed!
